Ticket Tips on how to buy tickets from Premium Online Ticket Brokers

By Mac James

One of the best ways to secure a quality seat for an event is by using a ticket broker. Ticket brokers specialize in obtaining premium seats, but also at a premium price!

- Always use an established ticket broker that is a good standing member of the BBB or other professional industry organization such as the NATB (National Association of Ticket Brokers).
- Make sure that you know you are not dealing with the box office itself, rather a third party broker and know how brokers operate.
- Ticket Brokers charge a premium price above what is listed on the ticket at the face value. They do not charge face value for tickets!
- Ticket brokers will determine ticket prices by the supply and demand of each particular event. Tickets could range from a few dollars over the face value to hundreds of dollars above the face value. It all depends on the market value for the event.
- Ticket brokers are much like travel agents or stockbrokers. They have access to everything you need to know about seating, venues, upcoming shows, and available tickets from industry sources.
- Ticket brokering is a very competitive business. Look for a broker that provides good, professional and courteous service.
- Ticket brokers will often only ship tickets to the address listed on your credit card billing statement. This is for your own personal consumer safety. If an alternate shipping address is requested, ticket brokers may ask for a copy of a driver's license. Don't be alarmed, it's a measure taken for your own consumer safety!

Ticket brokers provide a safe, secure and professional way to buy quality tickets. Just be prepared to pay a premium fee for the service they provide. Be sure to check out our recommended broker sites below:

Ticket Scaplers, Toby Keith Concerts, and the Law

By Robert Harper

Ticket Scaplers, Toby Keith Concerts, and the Law by Robert Harper

Thinking about buying Toby Keith tickets online? Don't get taken to the cleaners...basic tips on how to avoid problems with ticket sellers and the law.

Tip #1 When possible, buy from a reputable agent. That goes without saying. First, go to a place like Ticketmaster, type in your desired artist in the search bar. They will give you a list of places and events in the area you want.

Depending on location, you'll see different ticket options. For example, at the Pensacola Civic Center, Pensacola, FL– Tody Keith, you have these options listed below. Copy them, this will give you an idea what the base price is. Just because Main Floor is listed doesn't mean it's available.

---Ticket Options---

UPPER LEVEL * 3RD LEVEL FROM FLOOR
US $39.75 – US $54.75

RISER LEVEL * 1ST LEVEL FROM FLOOR
US $54.75

LOWER LEVEL * 2ND LEVEL FROM FLOOR
US $39.75 – US $54.75

MAIN FLOOR
US $54.75

---Ticket Options---

These are your best prices you'll may find.

Tip #2 Buy Early. The early bird does gets the worm

Tip #3 When there isn't much time, try Ebay.

Now if you decide to go the ebay route, here are some helpful tips:

a) Try to buy from someone who knows the area, if possible. They may know the best seats, motel and hotels, and rental car deals. Check their feedback closely (the number next to their user name)

b) You'll pay more on ebay. Absolutely. Get the quality seats, know exactly where your seats are. Don't pay double for 'nosebleed seats' way up top.

Here's the rules on selling tickets

(Quote)When selling a ticket on eBay for an event taking place in a regulated state, sellers are required to disclose the face value of each ticket (face value includes the price of the ticket and any service charge and tax charged by the original ticket provider that is printed on the ticket). Sellers misrepresenting the face value of their tickets may have their listing ended, may be permanently suspended from eBay, and may be subject to criminal prosecution.

For resale of tickets with a face value of $300 or more per ticket (ONLY if the event occurs in a regulated state), sellers must include proof of the ticket face value in the item description in the form of a partial scan of the actual ticket – clearly showing the face value and the event date – or else risk having the listing ended.

Be safe, on my website is a link to the rules for ticket sales in every state. It covers the buyer or seller, in or out of state purchases, and the regulations for each state.
