

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

Tips For Getting Your Baby Nursery Organized

By Jackie Kent

Planning what your baby nursery will look like is a big responsibility. Good time and money needs to be spent to make your child's haven suit your taste and seem perfect. Remember the nursery is going to be your child's playground and general living space for quite some time so it must have some utilitarian values as well. Keeping your nursery organized is of prime importance to make sure you make most of its functional benefits. Whether your room is as large as a football field or small enough to be a closet keeping it systematized is a priority.

Below we compile a few basic tips for keeping your child's nursery tidy.

Primary tip: See that you have sufficient space in the room for storage. Enough space for storing things will allow you to keep the room neater. Let's take one storage area after another for consideration.

- a) The Closet – Your child's clothes will be smaller in size than yours or your spouse's so take full advantage of the reduced dimensions, push the closet rod down until it is just a few feet above the floor. Use the extra space you create above for more shelves. You can also consider using a closet organizer to make full use of the space.
- b) Spaces Under...– The crib or the changing table are fantastic storage areas for baby stuff like diapers, creams, powders, wipes etc.
- c) Wicker baskets and Plastic containers – work very well for storing Blankets, crib sheets, bedding, bibs etc.
- d) A dresser or an armoire – sounds far too fancy to be useful but is actually quite helpful for storing things. Consider putting one of these in the nursery while deciding your interiors and furniture.
- e) Shelves and bookcases – These will allow you to put your baby's books, toys, teddies and other itsy bitsies in place. Improvise in case the area of the room is little; use taller bookcases instead of small, short ones if the space is cramped.

Tips For Getting Your Baby Nursery Organized

f) A toy box – one of those bits of furniture you just MUST have in a baby's room. Once the baby comes he will be getting new toys every passing week from you, your parents, your friends and pretty much everyone else who comes to know about his arrival. The growing toy collection can obviously prove a bit problematic to clear up. A toy box is the best answer to such toy trouble. Just shove them in the box and clear up your room.

When trying to organize your baby's nursery be innovative and imaginative and you'll soon find little nooks and cranny to store up those little baby details in. Remember, proper storage is the first step towards clearing up a room so don't ignore it.

Jackie Kent is a mother and author. See more of her articles at <http://www.homechangingtables.info>

Tips For Preparing For Your New Baby

By Gabriel Adams

When you first find out that your wife is pregnant with your first baby, you are usually very excited. Then slowly this excitement starts to turn to anxiety and fear. Having a baby is a huge step in your life, and you need to prepare for it as much as possible before the baby arrives. Once the baby is here, you will be amazed at the lack of time you have for anything except taking care of the baby. Here are a few tips to help you prepare for your baby's arrival.

The first thing that you need to do is to set a doctor's appointment to get tested to make sure that your wife is definitely pregnant. The home pregnancy tests are usually very accurate, but the test at the doctor's office is almost perfect. Your wife needs to start taking prenatal vitamins as soon as possible to make sure that your baby is getting enough of the right nutrients. After visiting the doctor to make sure mom and baby have all that they need to be healthy, it is time to start working on your house.

Make sure that you have the nursery ready before the baby is born. If you find out the sex of the child before birth, then you can completely have the nursery decorated before the child arrives. If you do not want to know the sex of the baby, then you can use neutral colors, so that it will not matter what the sex of the baby is. Either way, make sure that the nursery is ready for your new baby, because you will not have anytime after the baby is born to work on it.

Another way to prepare for your new baby is to read as many magazines and books as you can. Also talk to as many parents as you know to help prepare yourself for your baby's arrival. Nothing will fully prepare you for your baby's care, but this knowledge will get you out of some trying situations. Once you are prepared try to relax and take it one day at a time, because at first it will be a struggle.

Get a Personalized baby blanket to prepare for your new baby at

<http://www.messageonablanket.com/>

This Free E-Book has been brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!