Union Members Don 't Be Fooled, Conservative Talkers Have it in for You

Union Members Don 't Be Fooled, Conservative Talkers Have it in for You

Ever wonder why labor unions consistently endorse democrats over republicans in nearly every election? The answer is simple. Democratic officials support the right of workers to unionize and collectively bargain. Ronald Reagan, the great communicator, communicated loud and clear that he didn't recognize unions, or their right to strike, when he decertified the air traffic controllers union in 1981. This executive order led to the largest labor protest in our nation's history when 400, 000 men and women protested in Washington, DC against the policies of the Reagan administration. Reagan's message was clear; it is legal to fire striking workers.

Listening to talk radio today, you would think that the millions who listen to Rush Limbaugh and Sean Hannity are all large business owners. They can't possibly be working people. Blue collar laborers would never support talk show hosts whose ideas and rhetoric are overtly anti-union, right? Wrong. American working people, who live pay-check to pay check, all too often think they have more in common with Donald Trump than a homeless person. Nevertheless, they are often one-paycheck away from homelessness and millions of dollars away from the financial status of "The Donald," or Sean Hannity, for that matter. And it's not just big national names like Hannity and Rush. New York talk radio host Curtis Sliwa, who has changed his political ideology as often as a chameleon changes colors, recently criticized home-health care aids for striking over their seven dollar an hour salaries. Nevertheless, these hosts position themselves as heroes of the working class. What's worse is working class callers like Vinny from Queens and Joe from the Bronx contribute to the success of anti-labor talk-hosts like Sliwa and WABC overnight man Steve Malzberg. Malzberg appeared at a labor rally at New York's City Hall standing beside Fire and Police Department union leaders calling for a raise. New York City teacher's union President Randi Weingarten was there with Malzberg, too. I wonder if she knows that Malzberg mocks New York City teachers nightly, calling them unqualified and their students ill-prepared. Surely he believes these unqualified teachers deserve a raise! Malzberg's support for the police needs no explanation. All good conservatives support the police.

Union Members Don 't Be Fooled, Conservative Talkers Have it in for You

One should not be puzzled as to why union members vote for the Republican politicians that pass anti-union legislation. Sure labor unions protect their workers from layoffs, negotiate salary increases and protect benefits and pensions, but it's the republicans that protect the working class from the socialist-democrats who take working people's hard earned money and give it to lazy, crack addicted, baby making minorities. Good Catholics like Hannity use their forum to make sure that our hard earned tax\dollars are not redistributed to the poor.

I thought the gospel mentions in passing about taking care of the poor. I must be wrong. And the atheist democrats, who want to take "In God we trust" off our money, somehow think it's the responsibility of a civilized society to provide housing, food and medical care to the poor. Like Limbaugh says, "...the democrats are about symbolism over substance." Why should the wealthiest nation in the world, The United States, make sure all of its citizens have a place to sleep and have access to free medical care? Such radical ideas are only embraced by the socialist members of the G-8. Well, I guess that makes them all socialist, or dare I say it, LIBERAL.

Now those of you who are union members remember: unions reward mediocrity. You would be far better off in the laissez-faire world of Walter Williams. You don't have to read Bill O'Reilly's book to know who is looking out for you. Limbaugh and Hannity take to the air waves daily to remind you that the multi-million dollar corporations are. Without government interference, the invisible hand will make sure that your hard work pays off. And remember, when republicans legislate away the right of workers to organize, this is not government interference in the economy. On the contrary, they are preserving your chance to be another, Hannity, Rush or Trump.

Blast you ad to 2.5 million

Blast you ad to 2.5 million by Toby Olsen

Are you tired of paying for advertising that doesn't work, tired of paying for useless marketing campaigns? You are not alone, and that's the reason people can make money by selling stuff like: blast your ad to 2,5 million people every day, or email 70 million targeted opt in leads every month. Does it sound familiar? It looks so promising, and who does not need targeted opt in leads?

However, don't get fooled, don't throw away your money. The reason this does not work is that every subscriber that have opted in, every one of the 2,5 million or 70 million, or whatever it is, are there for the same reason as you. To sell, no one is there to buy. Therefore, when you email all these leads they will just delete their messages, and never read them. So do not waste your money.

The yahoo groups works the exact same way, but at least these are free. You can join a group, say the home business group, that have 4500 members or so, and you can email all the members for free. Sounds good? Not really, you must remember that all the 4500 members are there for the same reason as you are. To reach buyers with their product. I personally tried this, and I received 500 to 1000 messages in my inbox every day! No one have time to read all that mail. I never looked at a single email I received, and since the other members are like me, it is not surprising that to advertise on places like this does not work very well.

Making money on the internet is the same as anywhere else. To make money you must work for it. There are no magic or hidden formula, it is all about work.

So when you see headlines like: email 2,5 million people every day, or email 70 million targeted opt in leads every month, or make 5–7000$ in one week, don't let them fool you, and never ever let people like this take your money.

Kindest Regards

Toby Olsen
