Vacation At Your Own Risk With Independently Owned Vacation Rentals

Vacation At Your Own Risk With Independently Owned Vacation Rentals by Jackie Moniot

February 8, 2005 Norfolk, Virginia - Independently owned vacation rentals often have cheaper rates than those operated by rental management companies. However, those extra dollars spent on the agency-represented rental buy the vacationer peace of mind that the rental is legitimate and adequately maintained.

Agency-represented vacation rentals prevent travelers from being victimized by fraudulent rental transactions booked online or via telephone. In today's high-tech society where anyone can build a website or take pictures of someone else's property and pass it off as their own, online travelers need to be wary and cautious, or else they'll end up paying a scammer for a service they'll never receive.

Other qualities that vacation home renters can expect from an agency-represented property include cleanliness and upkeep. These properties are more apt to have updated repairs on the building and its appliances than others. Real estate agencies have housekeeping and maintenance services at their disposal, so their rental properties are cleaned and repaired much more quickly than an independently owned rental.

With so many vacation rental websites advertising rental properties by independent owners, RentJillsHouse.com is one of the only websites that advertise vacation rentals by both independent owners and rental agencies. Like every other Trader Electronic Media website, each independent property on RentJillsHouse.com is researched and verified by a fraud prevention specialist.

RentJillsHouse.com is the ultimate online solution for locating vacation rental homes and properties. The site is user-friendly and offers information on over 10,000 vacation rental houses in popular U.S. destinations ranging from the Outer Banks of North Carolina to Lake Tahoe. The website's purpose is to bring vacation homeowners, rental agents and vacationers together through the ease and convenience of the Internet.

Headquartered in Norfolk, VA, RentJillsHouse.com is part of Trader Electronic Media's family of over 15 websites, which includes TraderOnline.com. Trader's high-traffic websites receive millions of visitors each week. The sites cover virtually every used vehicle and general merchandise category, including apartments, homes, employment and hotel lodging. These include ForRent.com and HarmonHomes.com. Trader Electronic Media is a division of Trader Publishing Company, the nation's largest distributor of photo-classified ads. With Vacation Rentals You Can Stay For a Long Time

By Mike Yeager

Vacation rentals are an option when you plan to go on a vacation and stay for any length of time. For example, Florida has the basic strategy of finding what the vacationer needs, what they are looking for and with what budget and then fulfilling that need. In the process, as a visitor to this beautiful state, you will have a wonderful and interesting vacation at a price you can afford. Stay as long as you like. A vacation rental makes that possible. It has both moderate and luxury accommodations in all areas of the state can be found very easily.

Vacation rentals can also be found with the owners. The owners are a pleasure to deal with, and most prompt with responding to the people. When you plan on taking a vacation, renting directly with the owner is less expensive; and you can receive very helpful, detailed information about the villa itself.

Vacation rentals in Myrtle Beach, the city thrives on millions of visitors to the beach every year has beachfront condominium complexes – these oceanfront condos range from inexpensive studios to luxury 4 Br suites. So is San Diego with the largest selection of Mission Bay and Mission Beach vacation rentals with daily, weekly and monthly rates. On the other hand, Kauai vacation rentals have an exclusive selection of accommodations with its breathtaking view and tropical surroundings making it truly one of the world's most beautiful islands.
