What Women Should Know About Men, Before Trying to Change Them by Peggy Butler

WARNING: The following commentary is one woman's introspection, and is NOT meant to vilify the male species. However, if the jock strap fits, wear it proudly guys.

After 15 months of pure bliss, you and your significant other are still glowing in the aftermath of romance. Incredibly, you note with satisfaction, that you have the perfect relationship; complete with great sex, stimulating conversation and tons of fun.

Quietly assessing the situation, you think to yourself, "Although things are great, there are things about my partner that I would like to change." Then it hits you like a ton of bricks, "If anyone can break my mate of those awful habits like eating like a pig and telling jokes that would bore the dead, it's me." Psst, ladies before you spend one more minute thinking of interesting ways to change your significant other, let me remind you of a quote by the legendary astronomer Galileo who said: "You cannot teach a man anything; you can only help him to find it within himself. " Translated, that means IT IS NEARLY IMPOSSIBLE TO CHANGE A MAN, NO MATTER HOW HARD YOU TRY.

For centuries women have come up with a barrage of formulas to change their lovers or husbands, all to no avail. The secret to understanding men lies in the concept that they are guided by 12 principles. And they are:

1.He is convinced that he knows everything. And that reminds me, a mule's head is bigger than a man's, and they certainly don't have a monopoly on intelligence. So, chalk one up for the female species.

2.He must prove his manhood at all times. Morning, noon, night, and in-between. Whew! No wonder they're so confused.

3.He will always think that he is smarter than you are. If you love him, let him think that. We know the real truth, don't we ladies?

4. He is convinced that women are the weaker sex and the biggest gossips. Have you ever watched a male gossip columnist in action? Picture Ru Paul on steroids. Shall I say more? And speaking of the "weaker sex," have you noticed Serena Williams' biceps? Tennis anyone?

5. Rarely will he admit that he's wrong. But they are, and often.

6. He will NOT ask for directions. No matter how many times he gets lost.

7. He will not express his true feelings, especially in the presence of other men. To do so is to be seen as a wimp. And most guys would rather lie than be thought of as a Lansy Wansy.

8. He will always maintain some degree of pre-relationship fervor. Moreover, he has to prove that he still has what it takes to attract women, even if he's 110 and faints at the sight of his erection.

9. Under no circumstances will he tolerate disrespect in his own home. No, you do not want to go there. But if you have to, make sure your game plan is tight and you can back up everything you say, and then some.

10. He will insist that HE is the boss, even when he is unemployed or a stay-at-home dad who faints at the mention of the word housework. When this happens, remind him that relationships are based on a 50-50 partnership, and he is not the head foreman in charge.

11. Although the words orgasm and satisfaction are embedded in their psyche, men will never admit to being lousy in bed. In the event you complain that your needs are not being met, he will reverse the situation so that you're left wondering who's right and who's wrong. Hey no one ever said arguing with a man about his bedroom antics was easy. In fact it's downright exhausting, especially if he's convinced he can make a woman drool at the mere site of his Magical Tool.

12. He will never tell you he loves you more than five times in front of his friends. So, if he says it twice, you're lucky indeed.

There you have it, the average MAN in a nutshell. And if you still have the notion to change him, forget it, he already has. Wow! Ain't love grand?

Why Online Dating is so Tough For Men by Kenneth Scott

Online dating has become increasingly popular over the past several years. Every year millions of men turn to internet dating in an effort to meet more women without risking face-to-face rejection. Unfortunately, internet dating doesn't work very well for most men because the odds are so heavily against them.

According to a November, 2003 study by Jupiter Research, men are four times more likely than women to subscribe to an online dating site and twice as likely to browse, post, or respond to a profile. Obviously, those odds are stacked strongly in favor of the women.

When it comes to internet dating, to paraphrase James Brown, it's a woman's world.

This is quite a contrast from the off-line world, where attractive women are not approached nearly as often as men might think.

While doing research for my book, Take Action: How to Meet Women and Get Dates, I surveyed over fifty single women in their twenties or thirties about being approached by men and their views on being hit on and dating in general.

The most striking finding from the survey was that most women very clearly want men to be more daring about approaching them. In response to the question, should men be more bold in approaching women, 82% responded yes.

With a lot of effort and time, online dating can work for some men but it is not easy. You will probably have more success with internet dating by viewing it as a supplement to other methods of meeting women, instead of relying on it as your sole method. Also, use one of the larger services like match.com. You will need to use a shotgun approach and will therefore want to make sure you are in as target-rich an environment as possible.

But if you really want to meet and date a lot of women you will probably need to do it the old-fashioned way. Approach women in person.

As the old saying goes, the more things change the more things stay the same.

When it comes to meeting women, a confident man who can approach a beautiful woman and strike up a conversation with her will always do better than the 99% of men who cannot. Technology might change a lot, but it will never change that.
