

This Free E-Book is brought to you by Natural-Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!

When It's Time To Go

By David Stoddard

When It's Time To Go by David Stoddard

There comes a time when we are presented with an opportunity for something better than what we have. A new job or promotion which will take us closer to what we have dreamed, or you get a letter in the mail saying you may already be a winner.

You might even feel like chucking it all and joining the flying Wallendas as you tour around the world on your tightrope of fame, or maybe you'll just feel the need to get off the hamster wheel and find something new.

It's all good. It is your life, and you have the right and responsibility to yourself to do what you need to do, want to do, or just would like to do.

Maybe you hate the idea of leaving a job you like a lot but know there is something better you are moving towards. Perhaps you have just been there because you couldn't see yourself doing much else for one reason or another, until now. Or, like so many, you cannot wait to tell those so-and-sos what you really think of this place as you walk out the door, head held high and never looking back.

But as you think about it, there come these mixed feelings. Yes, it is time to move on with your life. But I have so much freedom in this position. Not sure at all what I am getting myself into moving forward. They never respected me nor what I brought to the table, forget them. I was good at what I did. I hope they can handle things without me. Boy, will they be sorry I'm gone.

When It's Time To Go

It isn't always easy moving from one part of your life to another. If it was a place we liked most of the time, we hope that those we leave behind will be able to handle things without us. On the other hand, when we don't feel appreciated as we leave, we hope so strongly that the place will just shut down by time the door closes behind us.

Truth of the matter is, life goes on. The places we leave will be fine. Sure, they may scramble a bit to get reorganized, our former bosses may feel hurt that we would dare leave them, and we will definitely be blamed for anything that just isn't right for about a year or so later.

But we can't let that stop us. Sometimes, we overstay our welcome. You see it in sports when a once great athlete tries to stick around for one or two more seasons too long.

But, nothing is forever, much less any one job.

Probably, one of the hard things to deal with is the feeling of being replaced. I've been lucky. The last two jobs I left, I was not replaced. Well, at least not right away.

It takes away the option of being able to go back. In a sense, you're stuck with the decision and have no other real choice but to move forward. And that, despite what we feel, is a good thing too. Safety and security are can be the worst things for us at times. They keep us grounded, they keep the status quo, and the longer we stay, the harder it will become.

There are countless hall-of-famers in all walks of life. Sad thing is not everyone gets to be enshrined in the hallowed halls like they do in Cooperstown, Canton, or even here at the bowling hall-of-fame in St. Louis.

One thing those we immortalized have in common is that someone else at one time or another replaced them, just like they had replaced the ones before them.

It's part of the whole circle of life I suppose. Even though so often it feels as if we are going nowhere and life as we know it is just standing still, it's not. It's constantly moving forward. And we will all reach these points of decision at one time or another.

Let's hope we don't start asking ourselves "What If" when it's our time to go.

Pick up a copy of David's 12–page e–booklet "In Search Of Ourselves" when you subscribe to his free motivational newsletter "Que Sera Sera." Mail to: que_sera_sera–subscribe@topica.com. Or visit him online at <http://www.djstoddard.net>

By

This Free E–Book has been brought to you by Natural–Aging.com.

100% Effective Natural Hormone Treatment
Menopause, Andropause And Other Hormone Imbalances
Impair Healthy Healing In People Over The Age Of 30!